- La AEG (Asociación Española de Gastroenterología), a través de su departamento de docencia, coordina una serie de monografías que recogen la información clínica más novedosa que se está generando en esta especialidad.
- El proyecto comienza con una serie de monografías de un elevado nivel científico y en las que participarán expertos nacionales e internacionales con una acreditada trayectoria tanto clínica como investigadora.
- Clínicas Iberoamericanas de Gastroenterología y Hepatología nace con el objetivo de convertirse en un proyecto a largo plazo que recoja publicaciones periódicas que permitan mantener al día al lector en aquellos temas más complejos y a la vez actuales de la especialidad.
- Cada una de las monografías estaría integrada por un total de 10 manuscritos orientados para que el lector pueda disfrutar de una visión global de la condición tratada.
- En esta monografía se realiza una revisión exhaustiva, actualizada y con una orientación práctica de los aspectos diagnósticos y terapéuticos más relevantes de una patología como la esofagitis eosinofílica, caracterizada hace apenas dos décadas y que actualmente se considera la segunda enfermedad esofágica crónica más común.
- Los contenidos de cada capítulo han sido adaptados a las necesidades de formación continuada de los especialistas, aunque aborda también aspectos de gran actualidad y relevancia para la práctica clínica.
- El proyecto global de AEG Clinics cuenta además con dos Directores de renombre que son los doctores Antoni Castells, del, Servicio de Gastroenterología del Hospital Clinico de Barcelon y Henry Cohen, Ex-Presidente de la World Gastroenterology Organization.
